HUMAN RIGHTS IN INTERNATIONAL ORDER

Paper Code: ML-106	Human Rights in International Order	Choice Based Group (D)	Credits:5
---------------------------	--	-------------------------------	------------------

Course Objective: Human Rights [HR] are the basis of human existence. The universality and significance of Human Rights can hardly be underestimated, however it gathered importance only at the far end of Second World War when United Nation come up in 1948 with the Universal Declaration of Human Rights[UDHR]. Since then, the scope of HR has been widening through conferences, conventions, covenants and declaration at International Level, and inculcate into national legislation at domestic level. The supporters of HR have kept this movement vibrant, inspired through International Organizations, NGOs, and Individual movements and even by State legislations. The transformation in the attitude of world community in general and domestic community in particular can significantly evident the growing strength and respect for HR. However, the ultimate goal of HR free from any bondages still far, though not beyond our reach. The international philosophy of HR is not yet inculcated and utterly failed to percolate in most of the domestic system, which is prominently reflected on close scrutiny of Indian system.

Despite the last six decade's indomitable perseverance, much of the HR is yet not achievable. This might be due to the difference between the approach towards HR at international level and at domestic forefront. In addition, the lack of awareness by individual, apathy by State, deliberate neglect by authorities has made issues more critical and crucial. Specifically, on the world map, the African continent is remarkably lagging behind to fulfill the objectives of HR on all index of HR. This made the study of "International Human Rights Law" more vital, incidental and one of the deserving subjects in the curriculum for this region.

Thus, the course is developed with the prime objectives to enhance theoretical understanding and practical appreciation by students on the core issues of "International Human Rights Law". The focus and the objectives of the course are –

- To develop understanding of HR philosophy at International Level
- To analyze the role of various organizations and their implementation mechanism for HR at various level
- To develop a mechanism for scrutinizing domestic hurdles in implantation, and enforcement of HR and their interactive interdependency
- To visualize the upcoming issues at International level and their effect on domestic system

Method of Teaching-Learning: Class room Lecture – This will include the various classroom inputs in the form of lectures, classroom teaching, PowerPoint Presentation – including audiovisual aids, Home assignments, Class room discussion, Class room presentation

LEGAL EDUCATION AND ADVANCE RESEARCH METHODOLOGY

Paper Code: ML-201

Legal Education and Advance Research Methodology

Core Paper

Credits:5

Course Objective: Research has pervaded every field of knowledge and law is not an exception. It has undergone drastic changes in last few decades. The main objectives of introducing such a subject at Master level is to provide the basic concepts and application of research in the field of law. Other objective is to inculcate and develop research and teaching aptitude among the students to make a career in teaching or pursue research in future.

Methods of teaching-learning: BCI and other guidelines and the development of law and legal education should be centric while first component of the course. Actual social issues based problems analysis is one of the sure methods of discovering law in books to support the law in action. Similarly problem oriented studies and enquiry is ideal for generating interest among the student community. Case-studies and presentation; problem research and analysis, drafting problem solutions, sending students to the area prone to related problem to learn the procedure and interrogative questions on that procedure would be a good form of assessment. A post-graduate student of law should get an insight into the objectives of legal education. He should have an exposure to programs like organization of seminars, publication of law journals and holding of legal aid clinics.

Course Outcome: At the completion of the course students will be able to

1. Teach law with varied approaches and with critical aptitude.

APPLICATION OF THEORIES OF JURISPRUDENCE

Paper Code: ML-301	Application of theories of Jurisprudence	Core Paper	Credits:4
---------------------------	---	-------------------	------------------

Objectives of the course: It is amazing, but true, that despite close affinities with the socialist world, no major curricular offering or research specialization (sort of) in socialist jurisprudence has emerged in legal education for the last sixty years. The objective of this and the companion courses is to remedy the lack. India has been, since 1976, proclaimed as a "socialist" democratic republic. Understanding of accomplishment of the socialist character of the Constitution the fundamental duty to develop excellence, individual and collective, and scientific temper also require full advertence to various schools and legal thought and legal processes and practices under the actually existing socialist societies.

Methods of teaching-learning: Case studies and case analysis or actual social issues based problem analysis with various theories of jurisprudence is one of the sure methods of discovering law in books to support the law in action. Similarly problem oriented studies and enquiry is ideal for generating interest among the student community.

Course Outcome: After the completion of this course, students will be able to;

- 1) Explain the meaning, nature, scope, and evolution of Jurisprudence, and critically analyze the relationship between law, justice, and morality, including the Hart-Fuller debate and its relevance to Indian legal perspectives.
- 2) Identify and evaluate the principles and practical implications of National Law and Historical School of Jurisprudence, with the ability to apply these theories to contemporary legal challenges.
- 3) To examine and critically analyze the principles of Analytical Jurisprudence by studying the empirical and positivist approaches to Law.
- 4) To critically analyze Sociological Theory, American Realism, Scandinavian Realism, and the Realist Movement in understanding law including Human Rights Jurisprudence, Feminist Jurisprudence, and Compensatory Jurisprudence to evaluate how law advances social interest.

UNIT-I: Introduction to Jurisprudence, law and justice

LL.M IIIrd Semester
DRUG ADDICTION, CRIMINAL JUSTICE AND HUMAN RIGHTS

Paper Code: ML-303	Drug Addiction	Choice Base Group (A)	Credit: 5

Course Objectives: Almost all the major dilemmas of criminal policy surface, rather acutely in combating drug addiction and trafficking through the legal order. The issue of interaction between drug abuse and criminality is quite complex. At least three important questions have been recently identified as crucial for comparative research. First, to what extent drug dependence contributes to criminal behavior? Second, in what do criminal behavior patterns determine drug abuse? Third, are there any common factors which contribute to the determination of both drug abuse and criminal behavior?

Apart from these causal issues, there is the broad question of the social costs-benefits of criminalization of addictive behavior. Should drug-taking remain in the category of "crime without victims"? Or should it be viewed as posing an ever-growing threat to human resource development and be subjected to state control, over individual choices as to survival and life-styles?

The problems here are not merely ideological or theoretical. User of drugs for personal, non-therapeutic purposes may well be linked with international trafficking in psychotropic substance. It has even been suggested that encouragement of drug-dependency may have, in addition to motivation of high profits, politically subversive aspects.

Assuming that both addiction and trafficking have to be regulated, what penal policies should be appropriate? What human rights costs in the administration of criminal justice should be considered acceptable? The international response to these questions is indicated by the Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs, 1954, adopted in New York, 30 March 1954 and as amended by 1972 Protocol in Geneva, 25 March, 1972 and the Convention on Psychotropic substances, adopted in Vienna, 21 February 1971. India has recently adopted the basic principles of these conventions in the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1986.

Broadly, penal policy dilemmas here relate to; (a) management of sanctions relating to production distribution and illicit commerce a Narcotic Substance and (b) ways of prevention of abuse of drugs, including speedy diagnosis treatment, correction, aftercare, rehabilitation, and realization of persons affected.

Important problems of method in studying the impact of regulation need to be evaluated at every stage.

Methodology of teaching learning: Lecture, Tutorial, Case study method shall be the main method of learning to be followed. The information sharing and flow of information among the teacher and taught has to work as bonding of the entire course. Survey, specialists' lecture and book review can also be a method of research writing in this paper.

Learning Outcome: On completion of the Course Curriculum students will be able to-

1. Understand basic concept related to drug abuse, crime without victim, consequences of Drug Abuse and Drug Addiction.
2. Explain ana-graphic and social characteristics of Drug User
3. Describe the International Legal Regime to deal with the problem.

LL.M. IV Semester

Paper Code: ML-401	Dissertation	10
Paper Code: ML-402	Open Viva-Voce by External Examiner	10

The dissertation is the final stage of the Masters degree and provides you with the opportunity to show that you have gained the necessary skills and knowledge in order to organize and conduct a research project. It should demonstrate that you are skilled in identifying an area, or areas, suitable for research: setting research objectives; locating, organizing and critically analyzing the relevant secondary data and authoritative literature; devising an appropriate research methodology; analyzing the primary data selected and drawing on the literature in the field; drawing conclusions; and if appropriate making relevant recommendations and indications of areas for further research. A dissertation is a 'formal' document and there are 'rules' that govern the way in which it is presented. It must have chapters that provide an introduction, a literature review, a justification of the data selected for analysis and research methodology, analysis of the data and, finally, conclusions and recommendations. Where the subject is based around a business or an applied situation recommendations for action may also be required. Advice on the range of suitable topics which relate to the subject area of your Masters degree will be approved by the dissertation committee formed by the Dean faculty of Law for the purpose.

Normally all the students are expected to work as per the guidelines of the dissertation committee and they have to do their research under the guide allotted to them by the committee.

Course Outcome: On completion of this course, the students will be able to:

1. Analyse the foundational principles of their chosen thesis topic in law,
2. undertake legal research with primary and secondary materials, and evaluate legal information.
3. Apply the law to complex issues, and critique the operation of the law from a policy perspective, individually.
4. Structure and sustain concise and cohesive written arguments for a legal audience.
5. Conduct and analyse legal research, and write, individually.
6. Analyse the impact of law from policy perspectives, and in the context of social and cultural diversity.
7. Reflect on their abilities to effectively undertake individual work.
8. Critically and systematically integrate knowledge.
9. Clearly present and discuss the conclusions as well as the knowledge and arguments that form the basis for these findings.
10. Carry out ethical aspects of research and development work.

Course Outcome: On completion of this course, the students will be able to:

1. Demonstrate that the thesis is their own work
2. Understand that what they have written and can defend it verbally
3. Investigate their awareness of where their original work sits in relation to the wider research field
4. Establish whether the thesis is of sufficiently high standard to merit the award of the degree for which it is submitted
5. Communicate understanding of the issue and the legal materials analyzed.
6. Express the knowledge in a coherent manner.
7. Clarify orally the written thesis in response to the examiners' questions.
8. Enhance their professional abilities.
9. Boost their confidence for further professional career.
10. Demonstrate more obedience and discipline.
