Report on E-Content Development

Aiming to provide an intense training on e-learning at faculty level for college and university faculty, a one-day training on 'E-Learning' held during July 28th, 2017 at Nandlal Bose Subharti College of Fine Arts and Fashion Design, Subharti University. The Speaker, Mr. Nalin Singh, Assistant Prof. of Animation said "With the learning, there is a strong need of E-learning, relearning how to teach the new generation students in this highly technological world. Teachers in this liquid society must be 'a meddler in the middle' and the process of teaching is mutual learning for both teachers and students. We should move from the attitude of 'I do, you do' to an effective and inclusive approach of 'we do'." He felt that availability of all information at the clique of the mouse for the students made the 21st century teaching a very challenging one and teachers should mould themselves to the required environment. Who gave an overview into the lessons learnt by Subharti University in implementation of e-Learning.

The presentations laid emphasis on policy and strategy as an integral part of e-Learning implementation and management. He drew from Subharti University's policy and practice in policy development, content development, learner support, capacity building and research. The presentations pointed out the role of mission, vision and objectives of the eLearning-focused campus or unit based on the e-Campus of Subharti University strategy. The benefits and lessons learned by the e-Campus of Subharti University were shared, as was the need to adopt e-Learning as a mode of learning for both on-campus and off-campus students.

Mr. Nalin also focused on online teaching and the online teaching tools in an E-Learning environment. The facilitator gave detailed presentations and demo on E-Learning tools used for teaching and learning in an online environment. Emphasis was put on the possible role for an online facilitator at Subharti University. After the presentations and discussions, participants were taken through a practical demo on E-Learning System. They would then present their work for peer critique and comments. The participants would continue reflecting on how these comments would apply to their eLearning modules.

Smart Boards have been making their way into classrooms since 1991, and have proven themselves as effective teaching tools. As with all technology, however, there are certain challenges for Faculty attempting to adopt Smart Boards. Here are a few tips.

Smart Boards can be a bit overwhelming at times with all their options including access to the Internet, which is filled with even more options. All those options are wonderful until the moment they create overload in a student's mind and contribute to confusion.

We are very grateful and thankful to Mr. Nalin Singh who gave us a good guidance and gives suggestion about each and every topic of E-Learning. They gave us guidance about E- content E-mail, Online Promotion, Social Media, Blog, Website, Video.

Aiming to provide an intense training on e-learning at faculty level for college and university faculty, a one-day training on 'E-Learning' held during On 2 February, 2018 at Nandlal Bose subharti college of Fine Arts and Fashion Design, Subharti University. Speaking on the occasion, Mr. Nalin, Assistant Prof. of Animation said "With the learning, there is a strong need of E-learning, relearning how to teach the new generation students in this highly technological world. Teachers in this liquid society must be 'a meddler in the middle' and the process of teaching is mutual learning for both teachers and students. We should move from the attitude of 'I do, you do' to an effective and inclusive approach of 'we do'."

Report on Symposium on –Is Online Teaching Possible in India? What will be the E- Content?

Symposium on –Is Online Teaching Possible in India? What will be the E- Content? Was organized by the Department of Home Science on 10.10.2017 in the MM Hall of University.

A total of 20 participants took part in the symposium. It was supported by 1 facilitator, 1 on-site co-facilitator, 1 online co-facilitator and 2 on-site technical support staff.

The workshop explored the use of the Learning Management System (LMS) in teaching and learning. The participants went through an Orientation to eLearning course to familiarize them with the online learning environment. It also focused on application of instructional theory and design for online learning in content development. In addition, it also explored the approaches to online teaching and how to respond to the technical support needs for eLearning in various contexts. At the end of the training, participants engaged in a discussion to build a consolidated approach to eLearning for capacity development.

The workshop was an opportunity for participants to reflect on the eLearning needs for University which could lead to the mobilization of resources for capacity building and growth of expertise to initiate the eLearning unit at University.

- How to prepare ppt
- How to save and use ppt
- How to add effects
- Where to use ppts

The resource person of the workshop was Mr. Sandeep Chaudhary from Physical Education College, expert in creative ppt making sessions.

There are abundant materials that have either been developed for, are suitable for, or could easily be adapted for use in teaching online. The workshop has provided a good start in identifying and organizing these materials and opened participants eyes to all that is available. Further work identifying and organizing these materials would be highly valued because it would both reduce set up time in developing new courses and allow for better selection of appropriate high quality resources. Such a collection would allow us to identify areas in which new materials development is needed. The workshop was a great help in understanding the use of videos in teaching and learning.

A Brief Training Report on E-Content Development

Held on August 3rd, 2018

Aiming to provide an intense training on e-learning at faculty level for college and university faculty, a one-day training on 'E-Learning' held on August 3rd at Nandlal Bose Subharti college of Fine Arts and Fashion Design, Subharti University. Speaking on the occasion, Mr. Nalin, Assistant Prof. of Animation said "With the learning, there is a strong need of E-learning, relearning how to teach the new generation students in this highly technological world. Teachers in this liquid society must be 'a meddler in the middle' and the process of teaching is mutual learning for both teachers and students. We should move from the attitude of 'I do, you do' to an effective and inclusive approach of 'we do'."

He felt that availability of all information at the clique of the mouse for the students made the 21st century teaching a very challenging one and teachers should mould themselves to the required environment. Who gave an overview into the lessons learnt by Subharti University in implementation of e-Learning. The presentations laid emphasis on policy and strategy as an integral part of e-Learning implementation and management. He drew from Subharti University's policy and practice in policy development, content development, learner support, capacity building and research. The presentations pointed out the role of mission, vision and objectives of the eLearning-focused campus or unit based on the e-Campus of Subharti University strategy.

The benefits and lessons learned by the e-Campus of Subharti University were shared, as was the need to adopt e-Learning as a mode of learning for both on-campus and off-campus students. Components of e-Learning were also discussed including the online learning resources, hosted in a Learning Management System (Moodle); Web tools e.g. discussion forums, wikis, blogs; e-mail, chat, messaging and other communication tools; podcasts and related resources; printable downloads; videoconferencing; administrative systems; learner support systems; lecturer support systems; a physical campus with infrastructure for virtualization of learning.

Mr. Nalin also focused on online teaching and the online teaching tools in an eLearning environment. The facilitator gave detailed presentations and demo on E-Learning tools used for teaching and learning in an online environment. Emphasis was put on the possible role for an online facilitator at Subharti University, including: welcoming learners to the course, establishing ground rules, creating community, managing communication, modeling social behaviour and establishing own identity. These were further categorized as:

- Pedagogical: Guiding student learning with a focus on concepts, principles, and skills
- Social: Creating a welcoming online community in which learning is promoted
- Managerial: Handling organizational, procedural, and administrative tasks

REPORT ON ONE DAY WORKSHOP ON HOW TO DEVELOP E-CONTENT FOR ONLINE TEACHING
WORKSHOP ON ONE DAY WORKSHOP ON HOW TO DEVELOP E-CONTENT FOR ONLINE
TEACHING 23.12.2018. The resource person was Dr. Shabnam Chhabra and Dr. Nisha Shukla from Ghazibad and GDM PG College. There were around 23 participants from different colleges.

Dr. Chhabra said Online teaching is an important part of the portfolio of ways in which we provide geoscience education to undergraduates. Participants courses are full of alternative students including from those who have children or jobs that demand a different schedule; This audience is large, important and growing. We neglect online teaching at our own peril and at the peril of a country that needs a geoscientifically literate population.

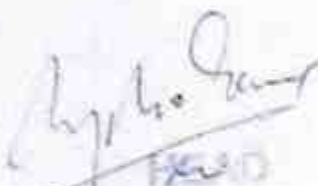

Dr. Nisha Shukla mentioned that online teaching share many challenges with face-to-face teaching: motivating students, engaging students in inquiry-based activities including those that make use of observational data, online data, and quantitative reasoning, and accurately assessing students learning. As might be expected, many of the challenges that are unique to teaching online come from the fact that the instructor and the student are not in the same place and that communication is dominantly written, and interaction takes place asynchronously and is mediated through the internet. As a result, some traditional approaches to motivating, engaging and assessing students are not possible and others are more time-consuming for the instructor.

Hybrid courses, an interesting middle ground where students meet both face-to-face and on line are of growing interest because they allow for more efficient scheduling of classroom space, support multiple learning styles, and introduce flexibility into both the student and faculty schedules. Hybrid courses can emerge naturally from increased out of class online communication with and among students.

The workshop was a great success.

Report

Dr. Ramesh Madan has talked about on the importance of ICT in contemporary Era. Information and Communication Technologies (ICT) is a broader term for Information Technology, which refers to all communication technologies, including the internet, wireless networks, cell phones, computers, software, middleware, video-conferencing, social networking, and other media applications and services enabling users to access, retrieve, store, transmit, and control information in a digital form. It is also used to refer to the convergence of media technology such as audio-visual and telephone networks with computer networks, by means of a unified system of cabling or link system. However, there is no universally accepted definition of ICT allowing for that the concepts, methods and tools involved in ICT are progressively evolving on an approximately daily basis.

(06 April, 2021)

A departmental-special lecture titled "Making Joyful online Learning" was organized on 06 April 2021 in the Department of Education Swami Vivekananda Subharti University Meerut. The special guest of the lecture was Prof. Dr. Anoj Raj. Prof Raj first discussed the methods to make learning easier and simple for all the learners and how online learning impact negatively on the cognitive aspects of the students in the present time. To make online learning more interesting and joyful, this Mrs. Rubi Chauhan was invited to share important tips on how learning can be made more joyful via certain techniques.

Ms. Rubi first explained the difference between learning and joyful learning, then discussed the effect of joyful learning on students. To make learning more joyful, teachers can adopt some methods such as better motivation, active participation of the learners, learning can be made more enjoyable through activities like educational games, motivational stories, songs, art, music, and drawings, which can draw from the life experiences of the students. Teaching lessons can be designed that relate learners to their environment and their past knowledge and experiences.

Ms. Rubi also explained the scientific facts behind joyful learning. She shared that Research conducted on the brain validates the fact that when the element of fun is missing from the learning, the element of actual learning taking place also remains absent. clinical evidence of cognitive psychology studies shows that boredom, stress, confusion, anxiety, and low levels of motivation hinder learning. Therefore, teachers should teach using these methods to make learning enjoyable, this Mrs. Chauhan concluded the lecture.

Associate Professor (Dr) Rahul Sirohi, Associate Professor (Dr) Vibha Laxmi, Mr. Sanjeev Kumar, Mrs. Sangeeta Rani, Mr. Rahul Kumar, Mrs. Reshu Rani, Mrs. Riba Devi, and Dr. Ragini Srivastva were present in this lecture.
